FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW<sup>1</sup>

8 METALAST INTERNATIONAL, INC., et al.,

9 Defendants.

10 11 I. SUMMARY

12 This dispute has a long and difficult history spanning over many years, several 13 lawsuits, and various courts. It arises from the breakup of a business and a 14 disagreement over the terms of a subsequent settlement agreement entered into 15 between Plaintiff Chemeon Surface Technology, LLC (“Chemeon”), Counter-Defendants 16 Dean Meiling (“Dean”) and Madylon Meiling (“Madylon”) (collectively referred to as 17 “Plaintiffs” or “the Meilings”),<sup>2</sup> and Defendants and Counterclaimants David M. Semas 18 (“Semas”), Metalast International, Inc. (“MI-INC”), and Metalast International, LLC (“MI-19 LLC”) (collectively referred to as “Defendants”). The court conducted a bench trial on 20 November 9, 10, 12, 13, and 17, 2020. (ECF Nos. 600, 603, 605, 606, 608.) After 21 reviewing the parties’ trial briefs, proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law, the 22 trial transcripts, trial exhibits, and the court’s notes from trial, the court hereby makes the 23 following Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil 24 Procedure 52(a).

25
26 <sup>1</sup> On May 13, 2019, this case was referred to the undersigned Magistrate Judge to 27 conduct all proceedings and order the entry of final judgment in accordance with 28
U.S.C. § 636(c) and Fed. R. Civ. P. 73. (ECF No. 494.)

28 <sup>2</sup> To avoid confusion, the court refers to the Meilings individually by first name.

1 II. CLAIMS

2 Chemeon commenced this action on June 3, 2015 alleging various claims. (See 3 ECF No. 1.) Chemeon amended its Complaint multiple times, ending with the operative 4 complaint, the Third Amended Complaint (ECF No. 535) filed on October 31, 2019.
 5 Defendants' asserted various counterclaims related to an alleged breach of a settlement 6 agreement reached by the parties prior to the lawsuit being filed as well as other claims.
 7 (See ECF No. 51.)

8 Following extensive pretrial motion practice, which will be further discussed 9 below, the following tables identify the claims and counterclaims that proceeded to trial:

10 Chemeon's Third Amended Complaint (ECF No. 535)

Claim #	Name	Issue Presented at Trial
11 2	Declaratory judgment remedies	Limited to issue of whether Attorneys' Fees should be assessed based on exceptional circumstances pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 117(a)
12 5	Common law trademark infringement	Nothing dismissed at SJ; no limit
13 6	Copyright infringement	Limited to Renewal of Registration on June 21, 2015 and two specimens – IC 001, IC 009 and the '206 mark

14 Defendants' Counterclaims (ECF No. 51)

Claim #	Name	Issue Presented at Trial
15 1	Breach of contract	Related to breach of settlement agreement by use of "formerly Metalast," etc.
16 2	Breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing	Relitigating this issue
17 7	Specific performance of settlement agreement	Prohibit future use of the "formerly Metalast" name, etc.

1 III. FINDINGS OF FACT<sup>3</sup>

2 A. Background Related to MI-INC and MI-LLC

3 1. In January 1993, Semas commenced negotiations to license a patented 4 metal coating process from a Japanese inventor. Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 70:20-21-71:7; 74:12-5 16. Eventually, Semas obtained the rights to this technology through a license with the 6 inventor. Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 74:12-20.

7 2. These rights were initially acquired by Semas through his fictitious 8 business entity, “Metalast USA.” Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 66:18-22. Through this licensed 9 technology, the product “Metalast AA-100” was initially marketed and sold by Metalast.
10 Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 66:18-22; 70:19-20-71:7; 74:20-75:7.

11 3. On May 16, 1994, Semas formed “Metalast International, Inc” (“MI-INC”), 12 which was incorporated as a Nevada corporation. Stipulated Facts ¶ 1.

13 4. From its inception until April 25, 2013, Semas controlled MI-INC and 14 served as its President and Chief Operating Officer. Stipulated Facts ¶ 6; Trial Tr. Vol.
15 1, 66:21-22.

16 5. On December 20, 1994, “Metalast International LLC” (“MI-LLC”) was 17 organized as a Nevada limited liability company pursuant to an operating agreement, 18 which was later amended on June 6, 1996. Stipulated Facts ¶ 2; Ex. 1

19 6. MI-LLC was as a separate business entity from MI-INC and its purpose 20 was to raise equity investments to expand the Metalast business. Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 68:13-21 15. The shares—in the form of membership interests—were primarily sold through 22 registered NASD brokers and broker-dealers. Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 136:24-25—137:1-5.

23 7. Per the MI-LLC operating agreement, for this entity to become operational, 24 MI-LLC had to reach certain minimum levels of equity investments. MI-LLC achieved 25

26 27

---

<sup>3</sup> All “Stipulated Facts” (ECF No. 595) are incorporated into these Findings of Fact.
28

1 those milestones and became operational in July 1995. Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 66:18-25—67:1-2 2; 69:9-12.

3 8. From its inception until April 25, 2013, MI-INC was the manager of MI-LLC.
4 Stipulated Facts ¶ 5.

5 9. In 1996, MI-INC entered into a license agreement with MI-LLC permitting 6 MI-LLC the right to use the Metalast trademarks. Ex. 15; 16.

7 10. The Metalast word mark and logo marks were always registered in the 8 name of MI-INC, and never in the name of MI-LLC. Ex. 323.

9 11. Specifically, in 1995, Semas filed the first applications for registration of the 10 word mark and logo marks. On those applications, the registered owner was listed as 11 MI-INC. Ex. 323. In 1996, the United States Patent and Trademark Office (“USPTO”) 12 granted these applications and issued the registrations explicitly listing MI-INC as the 13 registered owner of the marks. Ex. 323.

14 12. Between 1996 and 2011, Semas filed several subsequent applications for 15 registration of these trademarks and each application listed the registered owner as MI-16 INC. Ex. 323. In each of the subsequently issued registrations from the USPTO, MI-INC 17 was again explicitly listed as the registered owner. Ex. 323.

18 13. The identity of the registered trademark owner was also disclosed to MI-19 LLC members, including Dean, from the time of the initial registration through regular 20 company communications to members. Exs. 626-629.

21 14. Chemeon questioned whether the License Agreement (Exs. 15 and 16) 22 was created on or about August 12, 1996 but offered no evidence at trial that the 23 License Agreement was created at some later date.

24 15. The Metalast word mark and logo marks were initially registered in the 25 name of MI-INC, not MI-LLC. Stipulated Facts, ¶¶ 8, 11. The registered ownership of 26 the marks was never transferred from MI-INC to MI-LLC. There are no documents 27 transferring ownership of the marks from MI-INC to MI-LLC. There is no evidence of any 28 unwritten agreement to transfer ownership of the marks from MI-INC to MI-LLC.

1           16. The tax treatment of the fees and expenses paid by MI-LLC to maintain the 2 mark registrations does not demonstrate that MI-INC ever agreed to transfer ownership 3 of the marks to MI-LLC.

4           B. Meiling Investments and Loans to MI-LLC

5           17. Prior to investing in MI-LLC, Dean retired from a long and successful 6 career in finance in the 1990s. See Trial Tr. Vol. 2, 210:6-211:20.

7           18. In 1999, Dean was asked by a friend to analyze an investment in MI-LLC.
8 Trial Tr. Vol. 2, 213:19-24. After conducting his analysis, Dean advised his friend not to 9 make an investment in MI-LLC due to it being high risk. However, Dean decided to 10 make his own investment into the company. Trial Tr. Vol. 2, 214:6-23.

11           19. Ultimately, Dean invested $1.2 million and received a member interest in 12 MI-LLC. Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 85:21-25; Trial Tr. Vol. 2, 214:24-25—215:1-2.

13           20. Between 1999 and 2013, Dean, through his business entities, including 14 DSM Partners, Ltd., (“DSM”) a Colorado limited partnership, lent money to MI-LLC on 15 various occasions. Trial Tr. Vol. 2, 215; 222-225; see also Ex. 204. Through these 16 various loans, DSM became of secured creditor of MI-LLC.

17           21. By 2013, Dean had invested over $9 million ($6 million, plus accrued 18 interest), in MI-LLC. Trial Tr. Vol. 2, 225:14; Trial Tr. Vol. 3, 133:18-24.

19           22. In February 2013, Semas informed Dean that the company could not make 20 payroll or rent. Trial Tr. Vol. 2, 225:17-25—226:1-5. In March 2013, Dean agreed to 21 loan additional funds to keep the company operating, with the provision that if Semas 22 could not find someone else to provide future funds, Semas would have to step down 23 from his management role and turn control over to someone else. Id.

24           23. In early April 2013, Semas again informed Dean that the company could 25 not make payroll or rent. Trial Tr. Vol. 2, 226:11-24.

1           C.     Receivership Action

2           24.     On April 16, 2013, DSM Partners, Ltd., commenced litigation in the Ninth 3 Judicial District Court of the State of Nevada entitled DSM Partners, Ltd. v. Metalast
4 International, LLC and Metalast International, Inc., Case No. 13-cv-0114 (hereinafter 5 “Receivership Action”).<sup>4</sup> This action sought a receivership to take MI-LLC out of the 6 control of Semas. Ex. 150.

7           25.     On April 25, 2013, the court in the Receivership Action appointed James 8 Proctor as Receiver to manage the business of MI-LLC. From that point, MI-INC was no 9 longer the manager of MI-LLC, and Mr. Proctor excluded Semas from all MI-LLC 10 operations. Stipulated Facts, ¶ 14.

11           26.     On November 4, 2013, the court in the Receivership Action approved a 12 sale of certain MI-LLC assets, which were described as collateral for the various loans 13 from DSM to MI-LLC. Stipulated Facts, ¶ 17; Ex. 204.

14           27.     On the same date when Dean's entity commenced the Receivership 15 Action, Dean was aware that the security agreement and related loan documents did not 16 list the Metalast word mark or logo marks as part of the collateral for the loans. Ex. 285.

17           D.     Semas Bankruptcy

18           28.     On December 11, 2013, Semas filed a Voluntary Petition in In re: David M.
19 Semas and Susan O. Semas, Case No. 13-52337 (hereinafter “Semas Bankruptcy”), in 20 the United States District Court for the District of Nevada (“Bankruptcy Court”).<sup>5</sup> Trial Tr.
21 Vol. 4, 197:12-18.

22           29.     In the Semas Bankruptcy, Chemeon (then known as “Metalast Surface 23 Technology, LLC”) filed an Adversary Complaint entitled Metalast Surface Technology, 24 LLC v. David M. Semas and Metalast International, Inc., Adv. No. 14-05036 (the 25 “Adversary Proceeding”). Ex. 502.

27           <sup>4</sup>     The court takes judicial notice of the docket and filings in the Receivership Action.

28           <sup>5</sup>     The court takes judicial notice of the docket and filings in the Semas Bankruptcy.

1           30. The Adversary Complaint included claims for breach of contractual 2 guarantee, violation of the Nevada Uniform Securities Act, violation of the Federal 3 Securities law, declaratory judgment with respect to ownership of intellectual property, 4 breach of fiduciary duty, fraud, misrepresentation, fraudulent conveyance, conversion, 5 non-dischargeability, and fees and costs. Ex. 502.

6           31. Further, Chemeon claimed in its Proof of Claim (Ex. 501) and Adversary 7 Complaint (Ex. 502), that Chemeon, and not Semas, owned the Metalast word mark and 8 logo marks.

9           32. On January 27, 2015, Semas, MI-INC, the Meilings and Chemeon
10 attended a Settlement Conference mediated by Hon. Gregg W. Zive, United States 11 Bankruptcy Judge. Exs. 213 and 503.

12           33. At the Settlement Conference, bankruptcy attorneys Janet Chubb and 13 Louis Bubala represented Chemeon and the Meilings. Moreover, intellectual property 14 attorney Robert Ryan,<sup>6</sup> who by then had been retained by the Meilings, was available by 15 phone for consultation, if needed, during the conference. Trial Tr. Vol. 3, 129:17-24.

16           34. Semas was represented by bankruptcy attorney Steven Harris and 17 intellectual property attorneys Ian Burns and Michael Rowe at the conference.

18           35. Ultimately, the parties reached a Settlement.<sup>7</sup> Ex. 503.

19           36. At the conclusion of the Settlement Conference, Judge Zive placed the 20 material terms of the agreement on the record and canvassed all the parties as to their 21 agreement to those terms and intent to enter into the agreement. Ex. 503.

23
24 <sup>6</sup> Mr. Ryan is the lead attorney of record in this litigation.

25 <sup>7</sup> “Settlement” or “Settlement Agreement” refers to the settlement agreement 26 referenced in the Stipulated Facts, ¶¶ 22-25, the terms for which are stated in the 27 Transcript of Settlement Conference (Ex. 213, 503) and as approved in the “Order 28 Approving Motion for Order Approving Compromise and Settlement of Claims of Meiling Creditors Pursuant to FRBP 9019.” Ex. 513.

1           37. The first material term of the Settlement Agreement of significance in this 2 case is the “ban provision.” This material term is stated as follows:

3           [CHEMEON] through the Meilings, will continue to use the [disputed 4 Metalast] mark for 90 days following entry of the order approving the 5 settlement agreement by Judge Beesley, if he does approve it. At the end 6 of that 90-day period, [CHEMEON], the Meilings, and any other entity in 7 which the Meilings have an interest, will no longer be able to use the name Metalast in any fashion or manner whatsoever. Following that 90 days, the mark will be owned by Mr. and Mrs. Semas, or any entity in which they choose to transfer that mark.

8 Ex. 503, page 6, lines 2-11 (emphasis added).

9           38. The second material term of the Settlement Agreement of significance in 10 this case is the “release provision.” This material term is stated as follows: “The Meilings 11 agree to dismiss [the adversary proceeding] with prejudice and to waive any and all 12 claims they have from the beginning of time and through the date of entering of the 13 settlement agreement that they may have, known or unknown, anticipated or 14 unanticipated, against [Semas],” that the Semas’s would “release the Meilings and 15 [CHEMEON] from any claims they may have ... from the beginning of time until the 16 settlement agreement is approved,” and that the release was one “between these parties 17 or related entities.” Ex. 503, page 8, lines 11-24.

18           39. Despite placing the material terms on the record, the Meilings testified that, 19 at the time of the Settlement Conference, they believed the provision barring the use of 20 the term “Metalast” only extended to such things as letter head, business signs, and the 21 like. Trial Tr. Vol. 3, 36:23-25; 221:15-23; 234:8-14.

22           40. On February 9, 2015, Debtors Semas (and Susan Semas) filed a Motion 23 for Order Approving Compromise and Settlement of Claims of Meiling Creditors 24 Pursuant to FRBP 9019 (“Motion to Approve Settlement”). Ex. 504. This document 25 underscored the interpretation of the ban provision by Semas, which was far broader 26 than what the Meilings claimed they understood the ban provision to mean.

27           41. Semas’s attorney Steve Harris drafted a proposed written Settlement 28 Agreement, which he forwarded to CHEMEON’s counsel, Janet Chubb. Trial Tr. Vol. 4, 1 207:11-15. Harris testified Chubb called him in a panic because the terms in the written 2 Settlement Agreement, which reflected what was in the transcript of the Settlement 3 Conference, did not comport with the Meilings' understanding of the Settlement 4 Agreement. Trial Tr. Vol. 4, 209:2-25.

5 42. At this point, Chemeon and the Meilings were fully aware that the "ban 6 provision", as interpreted by Semas, extended to any use of the term "Metalast", in 7 commerce – not simply business signs, letterhead or the like. Ex. 506. Specifically, 8 Chemeon would not use the term "Metalast" in commerce to market, sell, or advertise 9 products.

10 43. The Meilings and Chemeon had an opportunity to oppose judicial approval 11 of the Settlement. Exs. 213 and 503. The Meilings filed a response opposing approval 12 of the Settlement. Ex. 505. In that document, the Meilings stated that they "opposed the 13 settlement because there is no common understanding of agreement reached at the 14 mediation". Id. The opposition was supported by declarations from Madylon, Dean, and 15 Ted Ventresca. Exs. 506, 507, 509.

16 44. Moreover, in their response opposing approval of the Settlement, 17 Chemeon and the Meilings argued they should be permitted to use the term "formerly 18 Metalast" pursuant to the Ninth Circuit case, Kassbaum v. Steppenwolf Productions, Inc., 19 236 F.3d 487 (9th Cir. 2000) ("Steppenwolf"). Ex. 505 at 11. Semas filed a reply in 20 support of the Motion to Approve Settlement, which responded to the Steppenwolf 21 argument. Ex. 511.

22 45. While the Motion to Approve Settlement was pending, counsel for the 23 Meilings requested a further conference with the settlement judge, Hon. Gregg W. Zive.
24 Ex. 510. During the status conference, Janet Chubb stated there was a dispute about 25 enforcement of the Agreement because the Meilings did not understand that they were 26 agreeing to stop using the name "Metalast" on their products, as well as in their business 27 name. Id. at 2-3. However, Judge Zive reiterated that the terms in the Motion to 28

1 Approve Settlement were practically verbatim with what was put on the record at the 2 completion of the Settlement Conference. Id. at 13.

3 46. In February of 2015, the Meilings obtained new bankruptcy counsel, 4 Timothy Lukas.<sup>8</sup> Trial Tr. Vol. 3, 144:19-22.

5 47. Despite claiming there was “no common understanding” related to the 6 terms of the Settlement, before the hearing on Semas’s Motion to Approve Settlement, 7 the Meilings filed a formal pleading withdrawing their opposition to the Settlement 8 Agreement. Trial Tr. Vol. 4, 217:9-13. The Meilings testified that the opposition was 9 withdrawn on the advice of counsel. Trial Tr. Vol. 3, 41:19-25—42:1; 237:12-17. By 10 withdrawing this opposition, however, Chemeon and the Meilings knew that if the 11 Bankruptcy Court approved the Settlement as is, the ban provision would prohibit their 12 use of the term “Metalast” - after the 90-day transition period - to market, sell, advertise, 13 and/or in variety of other uses of this term on their products and/or transactions in 14 commerce.

15 48. On March 2, 2015, the court in the Semas Bankruptcy conducted a hearing 16 on Semas's Motion to Approve Settlement. Following the hearing, the Meilings and 17 Chemeon objected to the form of order approving the Settlement. Ex. 512. On March 18 11, 2015, the Bankruptcy Court entered its order approving the Settlement, as stated on 19 the record at the conclusion of the Settlement Conference. Ex. 513. By approving the 20 Settlement Agreement, all claims arising between the parties prior to March 11, 2015 21 were expressly released by the parties.

22 49. Following the Settlement Conference, the Meilings and Chemeon 23 recognized that Semas owned the Metalast trademarks, and that Semas was free to use 24 the Metalast trademarks to build a new company, so long as Semas did not exploit trade 25 secrets that belong to Chemeon. Ex. 538. See also Exs. 215, 216, 218, and 539.
26 Counsel for Chemeon and Semas also exchanged new Settlement terms. Exs. 615, 616.

27 _____
28 <sup>8</sup> Mr. Lukas is an attorney of record in this litigation.

1           50. The circumstances surrounding the negotiation and Bankruptcy Court 2 approval of the Settlement make reasonable Semas's expectation that the Meilings 3 would not use the term "Metalast" to market advertise, market, sell, etc. its products in 4 commerce after June 15, 2015.

5           51. After the Settlement, Semas made several attempts to sell, license, or 6 otherwise monetize the Metalast brand name. Exs. 219, 220, 230. Following the 7 Settlement, Semas expected that he would be able to monetize the Metalast brand 8 name. Semas's expectation was reasonable under the circumstances. Dean also 9 testified that Semas could open whatever business he wanted and use the word 10 "Metalast" in that context and monetize its value if he acquired the business. Trial Tr.
11 Vol. 3, 43:4-6; 47:2-4.

12           52. The Meilings and Chemeon never demanded rescission of the Settlement 13 Agreement before or after the Bankruptcy Court approved the Settlement. The Meilings 14 and Chemeon never offered to restore the status quo ante.

15           53. Both Meilings testified that these actions were taken based on advice given 16 to them by their counsel that a different course of action could be taken. Trial Tr. Vol. 3, 17 41:23-25—42:1-6; 237:12-17.

18           54. For his part, Semas fully performed the Settlement by including disputed 19 claims in his bankruptcy plan of reorganization and performing according to that plan of 20 reorganization. Trial Tr. Vol. 3, 178:14-16.

21           E. Use of "Formerly Metalast" or "Formerly known as Metalast"

22           55. After March 11, 2015, Chemeon began referencing itself as "formerly 23 Metalast" and "formerly known as Metalast." In Ex. 518, Ex. 520, and Ex. 523, 24 Chemeon referenced itself as "Chemeon Surface Technology (formerly Metalast), with 25 roots dating back to 1994...." In addition, on its commercial forms, Chemeon referred to 26 itself as "formerly Metalast." See Ex. 524 (Order Confirmation), Ex. 525 (Invoice), Ex.
27 526 (Purchase Order), Ex. 527 (Quotation).

28

1           56. Pursuant to the November 3, 2013 Order in the Receivership Action, 2 (Stipulated Facts, ¶ 13), Chemeon purchased identified assets from MI-LLC. Chemeon 3 did not buy the equity in MI-LLC and did not assume its liabilities. However, after the 4 Settlement, Chemeon published an email to "customers, distributors, and friends" that 5 "The Company previously known as Metalast Surface Technology LLC (and earlier as 6 Metalast International LLC) officially changed its name to Chemeon Surface Technology 7 LLC." Ex. 516. This statement was incorrect because Chemeon was never known as 8 "Metalast International LLC." Dean explained that Chemeon's statement "was worded 9 this way just because people often thought of it that way. I agree with you that we bought 10 the assets. We did not buy the company." Trial Tr. Vol. 3, 150:17-19.

11           57. After March 11, 2015, Chemeon began referring to its products as 12 "formerly Metalast." Its shipping label identifies a product as "Chemeon TCP-HF SP 13 (formerly Metalast TCP-HF)." Ex. 528. See also Ex. 529. On its technical data sheets 14 and safety data sheets, Chemeon referenced each of its products as "formerly Metalast." 15 Exs. 540-591.

16           58. On its technical data sheets and safety data sheets, Chemeon does not 17 disclose the manufacturers of any of the chemical products.

18           59. On its technical data sheets and safety data sheets for products sold by 19 other companies under different names, Chemeon does not disclose the other brand or 20 product names under which those products are sold.

21           60. On its technical data sheets and safety data sheets for products sold by 22 other companies under different names, Chemeon does not disclose the other 23 "common" names under which those products are sold.

24           61. Chemeon did not seek or obtain any license to reference itself or its 25 products as "formerly Metalast" or "formerly known as Metalast" on any labels, 26 advertisements, technical data sheets, safety data sheets, or otherwise.

27           62. Chemeon offered no evidence that it ever stopped referring to its products 28 as "formerly Metalast" after June 15, 2015 or that it has any plans to stop in the future.

1           63. After the Bankruptcy Court's approval of the Settlement, Chemeon issued 2 a series of press releases indicating that "All QPD/QPL Mil-Spec product certifications 3 for Chemeon's products remain intact and in force in all respects...." Exs. 250, 254, 521, 4 522. Further, Chemetall USA, Inc. circulated an email stating, in relevant part:

5           FYI - All name change associated to our Navy license is complete and the 6 DoD QPD is in the process of reflecting the CHEMEON name associated 7 to our TCP-HF suite of products. The labeling and our TDS sheets and 8 MSDS sheets always will refer to "formerly Metalast TCP-HF .... etc....)

9 Ex. 223 (punctuation in original).

10           64. Chemeon's use of the terms "formerly Metalast" and "formerly known as 11 Metalast" were not limited to historical references.

12           65. Semas was unable to sell, license, or otherwise monetize his ownership of 13 the Metalast word marks because Chemeon was using the term "formerly Metalast" to 14 describe itself and its products.

15           66. By using the phrase "formerly Metalast" to market Chemeon and 16 Chemeon's products in commerce, the Meilings deprived Semas of an important and 17 reasonably expected benefit of the Settlement, namely the promise that the Meilings and 18 their business entity would never, after the 90-day transition period, use Metalast in "any 19 fashion or manner whatsoever."

20           67. By causing their entity, Chemeon, to sue Semas on claims that were 21 plainly barred by the release provision in the Settlement (See Amended Order, ECF No.
22 411), the Meilings deprived Semas of an important and reasonably expected benefit of 23 the Settlement, specifically the mutual release of all claims between the parties that pre-24 dated the Settlement Agreement.

25           F. Metalast Product Lines

26           68. The two primary products or product lines at issue in this case are: 1) 27 Metalast AA-200; and 2) Metalast TCP-HF.
28

1           69. Metalast AA-200 was initially sold by "Metalast USA," under the name "AA-2 100." This product was later renamed Metalast AA-200. Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 64:17-20; 66:15-3 22, 128:3-5.

4           70. Metalast AA-200 was sold by MI-LLC after it became operational. MI-LLC
5 never labeled, advertised, or sold a product as "AA-200" without the "Metalast" 6 preceding the "AA-200" in commerce. See Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 152:5-19.

7           71. Metalast AA-200 is chemistry that is available from at least two vendors 8 and is sold by others under different names. All parties to the trial agree that the identity 9 of the suppliers of the chemical is a trade secret not to be revealed in these Findings of 10 Fact.

11           72. On May 4, 2004, MI-LLC entered into a Nonexclusive License with the 12 United States, as represented by the Secretary of the Navy, to practice certain patents 13 generally referenced as "Navy TCP." In August and September 2006, MI-LLC signed a 14 new Nonexclusive License to practice the "Navy TCP" patents ("Navy TCP License").
15 Ex. 53.

16           73. Pursuant to the Navy TCP License, MI-LLC began selling products named 17 "Metalast TCP-HF", "Metalast TCP-HF EPA", "Metalast TCP-HF SP", "Metalast TCP-HF 18 Touch-Up Pen", and "Metalast TCP-NP". MI-LLC never labeled, advertised, or sold a 19 product as "TCP-HF" (or any of the variants) without "Metalast" preceding the "TCP-HF" 20 in commerce. See Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 152:5-25.

21           74. After the Settlement, and at Chemeon's request, the Department of Navy 22 approved a change in the QPL listings for "Metalast TCP-HF" products to "Chemeon 23 TCP-HF (formerly Metalast)." Ex. 530.

24           75. MI-LLC did not manufacture its own "Metalast TCP-HF" products, but relied 25 upon two chemical manufacturing firms, QualiChem, Inc. and Chemetall USA, Inc., to 26 manufacture and distribute the products. Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 138:1-4; Trial Tr. Vol. 2, 84:21-27 25.

28

1           76. Chemetall USA, Inc. created its own shipping label for Metalast TCP-HF 2 products. See Ex. 201, page 3.

3           77. QualiChem, Inc. created its own shipping label for Metalast TCP-HF 4 products. See Ex. 201, page 2; Ex. 611; see also Exs. 67, 68.

5           78. Since January 1, 2015, Semas has never sold, or advertised to sell, any 6 product that practices the patents in the Navy TCP license. Trial Tr. Vol. 1, 131:20-7 132:15.

8           79. Since January 1, 2015, Semas has never sold, or advertised to sell, 9 Metalast AA-200, or that chemical under any other brand or product name. Trial Tr. Vol.
10 1, 132:16-133:16.

11           80. Chemeon does not manufacture its product called AA-200. Chemeon buys 12 the product from one of two known sources, and re-labels the product. Chemeon's 13 technical data sheet for AA-200 does not disclose the manufacturer, distributor, or other 14 product names for the same chemical product.

15           81. Chemeon does not manufacture its cleaners, deoxidifiers, dyes, etches 16 seals, and other products identified in Exs. 548 through 592. Chemeon buys those 17 products from or through other manufacturers and distributors, and does not disclose the 18 identity of the manufacturers, distributors, brands, or product names in its technical data 19 sheets in Exs. 548 through 592.

20           82. Industrial, defense, and aerospace industry specifications from Sikorsky, 21 Pratt & Whitney, Northrop Grumman, Weber Aircraft, Hughes Network Systems, General
22 Dynamics, BAE Systems, FLIR Systems, and others called for "Metalast TCP-HF" 23 products. Exs. 194, 222.

24           83. Before the Bankruptcy Court approved the Settlement, Chemeon knew that 25 industry specifications called for Metalast TCP-HF products, and that losing the right to 26 call products "Metalast" would be detrimental to Chemeon's business:

27           The loss of the trademark requires rebranding 120 products sold in 230 28           formulations. Many of the contracts and contract specifications call for

1 "Metalast" products; some of them set up purchase standards for multi-2 year periods.

3 For example, the U.S. Army's Joint Manufacturing & Technology Center
4 specifically orders Metalast TCP-HF. Other major companies, including 5 Hughes, Boeing, Lockheed Martin, and General Dynamics, specify or 6 identify Metalast products in their list of approved chemicals and provide 7 directions for the chemical treatment with Metalast products.

8 If the Meilings are no longer able to identify their products with the Metalast 9 trademarks, they face consequences if customers decide the newly named 10 products do not comply with contract terms, purchase requirements, or 11 treatment standards.

12 Decl. Ted Ventresca (Chief Operating Officer of Chemeon), February 17, 2015. Ex. 509.

13 84. MI-LLC obtained certifications for Metalast TCP-HF products for the Navy
14 Qualified Product List ("QPL") or Qualified Product Database ("QPD"). QPL/QPD 15 certification requires inspections of both the seller of the products (MI-LLC) and the 16 manufacturers of the products (e.g., Chemetall and QualiChem), including the specific 17 plants where the products are manufactured. See e.g., Ex. 531, pp. 3, 5, 7.

18 G. Copyright Issues

19 85. On March 20, 2017, Chemeon applied for registration of a copyright in the 20 2004 Product Label. Ex. 291. The Copyright Office issued a Certificate of Registration 21 for the work with an effective date of March 20, 2017. Ex. 290. Chemeon did not 22 establish when the Copyright Office issued the Certificate of Registration 2004 Product 23 Label.

24 86. On March 20, 2017, Chemeon applied for registration of a copyright in the 25 2003 Job Pro Web Page Advertisement. Ex. 293. The Copyright Office issued a 26 Certificate of Registration for the work with an effective date of March 20, 2017. Ex. 292.
27 Chemeon did not establish when the Copyright Office issued the Certificate of 28 Registration for the 2003 Job Pro Web Page Advertisement.

87. Chemeon offered no direct evidence to establish who created the 2003 Job Pro Web Page Advertisement, or any components of that work.

88. When Chemeon applied for registration of the 2004 Product Label, Chemeon represented that MI-LLC was the author of the work. Ex. 291 (at ECF No.

1 535-5, page 75). However, there is evidence that the 2004 Product Label was 2 "authored" by QualiChem. Ex. 611.

3 89. On January 29, 2020, Chemeon obtained an Assignment of All Rights in 4 Work with respect to the 2004 Product Label from QualiChem. Ex. 304. The 5 Assignment of All Rights in Work recites that QualiChem "may have created an original 6 work of authorship in the product label..."

7 90. On June 21, 2015, Ian Burns (an attorney representing Semas) submitted 8 a Combined Declaration of Use and/or Excusable Nonuse/Application for Renewal of a 9 Mark under Sections 8 & 9" for the renewal of the Metalast word mark under Registration 10 No. 2963106. Ex. 244, 245 ("USPTO Renewal Application"). As part of, or in support of, 11 the USPTO Renewal Application, Burns submitted PDF copies of the 2004 Product 12 Label and the 2003 Job Pro Web Page Advertisement.

13 91. Chemeon offered no evidence that Semas provided the 2003 Job Pro Web 14 Page Advertisement to Burns.

15 92. Chemeon offered no evidence that Semas directly, or through any agent, 16 copied or otherwise infringed the Copyright Works<sup>9</sup> after June 21, 2015. Chemeon 17 offered no evidence that Semas threatened to copy or otherwise infringe the Copyright 18 Works in the future.

19 93. By this reference, these Findings of Fact incorporate any factual findings 20 stated in the following Conclusions of Law.

21 IV. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

22 To clearly explain the claims that proceeded to trial and are therefore decided by 23 these findings of fact and conclusions of law, the court must provide a detailed 24 explanation of the relevant procedural history.

25
26 _____
27 <sup>9</sup> "Copyright Works" refers to the "works" referenced as the 2004 Product Label in 28 Exs. 290 and 291, and the 2003 Job Pro Web Page Advertisement in Exs. 292 and 293.

1           A.     Initial Complaint

2           Chemeon commenced this action on June 3, 2015, seeking relief for: (1) 3 misappropriation of trade secrets under NRS 600A.030; (2) declaratory judgment of no 4 trademark infringement; (3) cancellation of the logo trademarks; (4) common law 5 trademark infringement; (5) copyright infringement; (6) intentional interference with 6 prospective economic advantage; (7) unfair competition under 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a); (8) 7 statutory deceptive trade practices/consumer fraud; and (9) unjust enrichment. (ECF 8 No. 1.) On July 6, 2015, Defendants answered the complaint (ECF No. 32).

9           B.     Defendants' Counterclaims

10           On September 3, 2015, Defendants filed counterclaims against Chemeon and the 11 Meilings, seeking relief for: (1) breach of contract; (2) breach of the covenant of good 12 faith and fair dealing (i.e., "bad faith"); (3) trademark dilution; (4) trademark infringement; 13 (5) trademark infringement and unfair competition under state law; (6) trademark dilution 14 under state law; and (7) specific performance of settlement. (ECF No. 51.) On October 15 2, 2015, Chemeon and the Meilings filed their answer to the counterclaim. (ECF No.
16 62.)

17           Pursuant to a stipulation of the parties, Defendants' voluntarily dismissed, with 18 prejudice, the counterclaims which sought relief related to trademark dilution and 19 trademark infringement under both state and federal law, leaving only breach of contract, 20 bad faith, and specific performance counterclaims. (ECF No. 199.)

21           On May 16, 2016, Defendants filed a motion for partial summary judgment as to 22 their first claim for relief for breach of contract. (ECF No. 130.) The Court denied the 23 motion, ruling that the Settlement Agreement did not unambiguously impose an 24 "absolute ban" on the use of the Metalast name after June 15, 2015 based, in part, on 25 the holding of the Ninth Circuit case, Steppenwolf, 236 F.3d 487. (ECF No. 233.)

26           On March 9, 2017, Chemeon, in turn, filed a motion for summary judgment as to 27 the remaining counterclaims. (ECF No. 227.) The Court heard oral argument on the 28 motion and issued an oral ruling denying the motion, again stating that the Settlement

1 Agreement did not unambiguously impose an absolute ban on the use of the Metalast
2 name. (See ECF Nos. 367, 368, 409.)

3 Thus, Defendants' First Claim for Relief (breach of contract), Second Claim for 4 Relief (bad faith), and Seventh Claim for Relief (specific performance) counterclaims 5 proceeded to trial.

6 C. Second Amended Complaint

7 Chemeon filed its Second Amended Complaint on November 11, 2017. (ECF No.
8 348). The Second Amended Complaint, which was the operative complaint for much of 9 the litigation, sought relief for: (1) misappropriation of trade secrets under NRS 600A.030;
10 (2) declaratory judgment of no trademark infringement; (3) cancellation of the Metalast 11 registration; (4) cancellation of the logo trademarks; (5) common law trademark 12 infringement; (6) copyright infringement; (7) intentional interference with prospective 13 economic advantage; (8) unfair competition under 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a); (9) statutory 14 deceptive trade practices/consumer fraud; (10) unjust enrichment; (11) breach of 15 fiduciary duty; (12) breach of operating agreement; (13) contractual breach of implied 16 covenant of good faith and fair dealing; (14) tortious breach of implied covenant of good 17 faith and fair dealing; (15) conversion; (16) civil conspiracy; and (17) breach of 18 contract/employment agreement. (ECF No. 348.) Defendants filed their answer to the 19 Second Amended Complaint on November 15, 2017. (ECF No. 351.)

20 On June 19, 2017, Defendants filed a motion for partial summary judgment (ECF 21 No. 313). The Court granted Defendants' motion for summary judgment as to 22 Chemeon's claims for: (1) breach of fiduciary duty; (2) breach of operating agreement; 23 (3) contractual breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing; (4) tortious 24 breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing; (5) conversion; (6) conspiracy; 25 (7) breach of employment contract; (8) misappropriation of trade secrets; (9) interference 26 with prospective economic advantage; (10) unfair competition; (11) statutory deceptive 27 trade practices/consumer fraud; and (12) unjust enrichment. (See ECF No. 411.)
28 Defendants' motion was denied as to Chemeon's claim for copyright infringement. (Id.)

1 On June 19, 2017, Chemeon also filed a motion for summary judgment (ECF No.
2 315.) The Court granted Chemeon's motion for summary judgment as to Chemeon's 3 claim of cancellation of the Logo Marks (Fourth Claim for Relief) but denied it as to all 4 other claims. (See ECF No. 411.)

5 On April 24, 2018, Chemeon filed a motion for reconsideration of the summary
6 judgment order. (ECF No. 412). Upon reconsideration, the Court granted Chemeon's 7 Second Claim for Relief (declaratory judgment of no trademark infringement as to the 8 word marks only.) (See ECF No. 425.) The Court also granted summary judgment on 9 the claim that Semas had abandoned his logo mark and Semas then cancelled his 10 federal logo registrations. (ECF No. 430.)

11 On July 25, 2018, Defendants filed a renewed motion for summary judgment 12 (ECF No. 427), which the Court granted as to Chemeon's Third Claim for Relief 13 (cancellation of the Metalast registration) based on Chemeon's lack of standing. (See 14 ECF No. 481.)

15 Thus, Chemeon's Second Claim for Relief (as to an award of exceptional case 16 attorney's fees only), Fifth Claim for Relief (common law trademark infringement), and 17 Sixth Claim for Relief (copyright infringement) claims proceeded to trial.

18 D. Third Amended Complaint

19 On October 31, 2019, Chemeon filed its Third Amended Complaint. (ECF No.
20 535.) The Third Amended Complaint amended the copyright infringement claim (Sixth 21 Claim for Relief) only, to comply with the U.S. Supreme Court's opinion in Fourth Estate
22 Public Benefit Corp. v. Wall-Street.com LLC, 139 S.Ct. 881 (2019). (See ECF No. 522.)
23 Defendants filed their answer to the Third Amended Complaint on November 18, 2019.
24 (ECF No. 539.)

1 V. CONCLUSIONS OF LAW<sup>10</sup>

2 A. Defendants' Counterclaim 1 – Breach of Contract

3 “A settlement agreement is a contract, [and] its construction and enforcement are 4 governed by principles of contract law.” May v. Anderson, 121 Nev. 668, 119 P.3d 1254, 5 1257 (2005). See also Ashker v. Newsom, 968 F.3d 939, 944 (9th Cir. 2020) (applying 6 California law).

7 The Settlement Agreement was formed in Nevada. Chemeon, MI-INC, MI-LLC, 8 and the Meilings are all citizens of Nevada. This case to interpret the Settlement was 9 brought in the District of Nevada. Nevada law governs the formation, interpretation, and 10 enforcement of the Settlement.<sup>11</sup>

11 Contract interpretation is a question of law. See Shelton v. Shelton, 119 Nev.
12 492, 497, 78 P.3d 507, 510 (2003). “A basic rule of contract interpretation is that '[e]very 13 word must be given effect if at all possible.” Musser v. Bank of America, 114 Nev. 945, 14 949, 964 P.2d 51, 54 (1998) (internal quotations omitted). When construing a contract, a 15 court should consider the contract as a whole and “should not interpret a contract so as 16 to make meaningless its provisions.” Phillips v. Mercer, 94 Nev. 279, 282, 579 P.2d 174, 17 176 (1978).

18 When a contract is unambiguous, the court must construe the contract from the 19 language used by the parties, not from extrinsic evidence. Chwialkowski v. Sachs, 108

---

21 <sup>10</sup> These Conclusions of Law incorporate any legal conclusions stated in the 22 foregoing Findings of Fact.

23 <sup>11</sup> The Settlement contains mutual releases between Semas and the Meilings, and 24 their respective business entities. Transcript of Settlement, p. 8, lines 11-24. Exs. 213 25 and 503. In ruling on pretrial motions, this court determined that the effective date of the 26 mutual releases is March 11, 2015. (ECF No. 411, p. 7, lines 7-10.) On Chemeon's 27 motion for reconsideration, the court again confirmed that the effective date of the 28 mutual releases is March 11, 2015. (ECF No. 425.) This court also determined that several claims asserted in the original Complaint, First Amended Complaint, Second Amended Complaint, and Third Amended Complaint were barred by the Settlement's release provision and further reiterates that March 11, 2015 is the release date per the Release Provision of the Settlement Agreement.

1 Nev. 404, 406, 834 P.2d 405, 406 (1992). A contract is unambiguous if it is not 2 susceptible to more than one interpretation. See Margrave v. Dermody Properties, Inc., 3 110 Nev. 824, 827, 878 P.2d 291, 293 (1994).

4 In ruling on Defendants' partial motion for summary on the counterclaim for 5 breach of contract, Judge Du expressly held that, despite the language in the Settlement 6 Agreement, pursuant to Steppenwolf, there could not be an absolute ban on the use of 7 the word "Metalast" in any context whatsoever. (ECF No. 233.) Rather, Judge Du 8 determined that an issue of fact existed as to whether the way Chemeon and the 9 Meilings used "formerly Metalast" after the 90-day transition period would fit within the 10 terms of the Settlement Agreement. (See id.)<sup>12</sup> Thus, the court must determine whether 11 the use of the word "Metalast" fit within the terms of the Settlement Agreement.

12 The Settlement Agreement provides that, following a 90-day period, the Meilings 13 and their business entity, Chemeon "will no longer be able to use the name Metalast in 14 any fashion or manner whatsoever." See Ex. 503, page 6, lines 2-11. The court finds 15 that the parties' agreement was clearly directed at precluding the use of the term 16 "Metalast" to market, sell and advertise products and to use the "Metalast" marks in 17 commerce after June 15, 2015. This finding is based on the understanding of the ban 18 provision as testified to by Steve Harris, Semas, the various exhibits of correspondence 19 related to the parties' attempts to reduce the Settlement Agreement to a writing, and the 20 subsequent correspondence between Semas, the Meilings, and all the attorneys 21 involved after the Settlement Agreement was formerly entered by the Bankruptcy Court.

22 Although the Meilings testified that they did not understand the terms of the 23 Settlement Agreement, the evidence at trial establishes that before the Bankruptcy Court 24 approved the Settlement, the Meilings and Chemeon were fully aware of the expansive 25 interpretation of that term by all others involved – including Semas and Judge Zive.

---

27 <sup>12</sup> Having received this case on consent after this decision was entered, the 28 undersigned made clear on numerous occasions that she would not revisit or overrule prior orders in this case. (See ECF Nos. 510 at 16-17; 537 at 124.) Thus, the court conducts its analysis pursuant to those prior rulings.

1 Specifically, they knew that the Settlement precluded Chemeon from using "Metalast" in 2 any fashion or manner whatsoever as it related to use in commerce, such as on its 3 product labels, and/or other in the selling or marketing of its business or products. This 4 knowledge is underscored by the fact that they complained to the settlement judge that 5 the terms were onerous and would prevent Chemeon from selling products that complied 6 with QPL/QPD, Mil-Spec, or industry contractor specifications. Exs. 505, 506, 507, 509, 7 510. Thus, the Meilings' post-Settlement Conference conduct establishes that they 8 understood that the contract called for an "absolute prohibition" on the use of "Metalast" 9 from the end of the 90-day period after Bankruptcy Court approval of the Settlement 10 when they used the name in commerce, on its product labels, and in other selling or 11 marketing of its business and products.

12 Despite this, Chemeon and the Meilings proceeded to utilize the term "Metalast" 13 in direct contravention to the ban provision after June 15, 2015. Chemeon and the 14 Meilings used this term on product labels, technical data sheets, safety sheets, business 15 correspondence and documents and in a variety of other means in commerce.
16 Therefore, this court finds that the way Chemeon utilized the term "formerly Metalast" or 17 "formerly known as Metalast" as evidenced at the trial, breached the terms of the 18 Settlement Agreement.

19 Based on this finding, the court must next determine whether any defenses apply.

20 1. "Fair Use" Defense (Steppenwolf)

21 In an order on a motion for reconsideration, Judge Du reiterated that her prior 22 order "identified an affirmative defense available to Chemeon—specifically, the defense 23 that despite its use of the word "Metalast" in the marketplace, such use does not cause 24 confusion because it is accurate and/or historical and thus such use does not amount to 25 a breach of the Settlement Agreement." (ECF No. 425 at 5.) As such, the court must 26 next consider Chemeon's fair use defense and the application of Steppenwolf based on 27 this prior ruling to the manner in which Chemeon and the Meilings used this term.
28

1           Having considered the evidence at trial and Chemeon’s arguments, the court 2 rejects Chemeon’s fair use defense. First, the court finds that the way Chemeon used 3 “formerly Metalast” is distinguishable from the facts of Steppenwolf. In addition, the court 4 explicitly disagrees with Chemeon that their use of these terms was limited to accurate 5 historical information, as in Steppenwolf, or was necessary as a matter of public policy 6 for the reasons explained below.

7           In Steppenwolf, 236 F.3d at 489, the agreement at issue provided for Kassbaum, 8 a former member of the band Steppenwolf, and others to “waive, relinquish and release 9 any and all of their individual or collective rights in the name “STEPPENWOLF” or any 10 other word or phrase incorporating the name “STEPPENWOLF” for any purpose 11 whatsoever.” The agreement further required Kassbaum to give up any “trademark, 12 trade name, service mark, or service name rights . . . in the name “STEPPENWOLF.” Id.
13 The court first discussed the history relating to the parties’ dispute as to the ownership 14 and control over the use of the trademark in the name Steppenwolf. Id. at 491-92. The 15 court found that “[u]nder these circumstances, it is clear that the contract’s broad 16 language ‘for any purposes whatsoever,’ and ‘all other uses of the name 17 ‘STEPPENWOLF’ in the entertainment industry’ refers to the use of the trade name 18 Steppenwolf, and not to the simple use of the name to provide accurate historical 19 information that would not lead reasonable people to think Kassbaum’s new band was 20 Steppenwolf.” Id. at 492 (emphasis in original). As the court observed, “[t]aken out of 21 context, the language ‘name STEPPENWOLF’ and “‘or any purposes whatsoever’ might 22 be read so broadly as to preclude Kassbaum from writing ‘Steppenwolf’ on the sidewalk 23 in chalk.” Id. at 491.

24           While the Settlement Agreement may not be deemed an “absolute ban” the court 25 finds that the “ban provision” did ban Chemeon from utilizing the name in commerce, 26 which is exactly how it has been used by Chemeon throughout the entirety of the case.
27 In Steppenwolf, 236 F.3d at 492, the Court found Kassbaum could use “Steppenwolf” to 28 provide accurate historical information that would not lead reasonable people to think

1 Kassbaum's new band was Steppenwolf. Thus, Chemeon is free to write the word 2 "Metalast" in chalk on a sidewalk or inform investors or lenders that it acquired certain 3 assets from MI-LLC. But Chemeon's use was not merely writing words in chalk on a 4 sidewalk—Chemeon's use far exceeded an accurate historical context. Chemeon 5 utilized the term "Metalast" or "formerly Metalast" in commerce when it appeared on or in 6 press releases, advertisements, business communications such as letters and emails, 7 and commercial forms such as shipping labels, technical data sheets, and safety data 8 sheets. Chemeon's reference to itself as "formerly Metalast" would lead reasonable 9 people to think Chemeon was the company formerly known as Metalast, which is clearly 10 an impermissible use of the name and in contradiction to Steppenwolf.<sup>13</sup>

11 Thus, Chemeon's use of the phrase "formerly Metalast" was not a fair use of this 12 term because it plainly violated the terms of the Settlement Agreement and implied that 13 the company "Metalast" ceased to exist or was subsumed by Chemeon. Moreover, 14 Chemeon's use of "formerly Metalast" was not limited to historical references, and in 15 fact, was not historically accurate in several respects based on the evidence presented 16 at trial. Therefore, the court rejects this defense.

17 2. The OSHA Regulatory Defense

18 Next, Chemeon asserts that it is legally required to call itself "formerly Metalast" 19 and its products "formerly Metalast" in its technical data sheets and safety data sheets 20 (e.g., Exs. 540-592). For this principle, Chemeon cites 29 CFR § 1910.1200 ("Hazard 21 Communication"), a regulation enforced by the Occupational Safety and Health 22 Administration (the "OSHA Regulation"). 29 CFR § 1910.1200(g) mandates safety data 23

24 <sup>13</sup> It is critical to note that Steppenwolf separately applies trademark law and 25 contract law. Although Semas's counterclaim (ECF No. 50) and amended counterclaim 26 (ECF No. 51) asserted claims for trademark infringement, those claims were dismissed 27 with prejudice by stipulation (ECF No. 181) and order (ECF No. 199). Therefore, the 28 court does not enter any conclusions of law with respect to the trademark analysis in Steppenwolf. Specifically, under Steppenwolf, "marketplace confusion" is a concept that is relevant to trademark law but is irrelevant to contract law.

1 sheets ("SDS") and specifies the contents of the SDSs. Subsection (g)(2) specifies the 2 contents of the SDS. Subsection (g)(2)(i) requires "identification" of the substance.
3 Appendix D to the OSHA Regulation specifies that each SDS shall include under 4 "identification" the following: (a) Product identifier used on the label; (b) Other means of 5 identification; (c) Recommended use of the chemical and restrictions on use; (d) Name, 6 address, and telephone number of the chemical manufacturer, importer, or other 7 responsible party; and (e) Emergency phone number. Nothing in the text of the OSHA 8 Regulation -- including Appendix D mandates that Chemeon identify itself or its products 9 as "formerly Metalast."
10

11 Chemeon has not cited any judicial or regulatory ruling that mandates that 12 Chemeon refer to itself or its products as "formerly Metalast." Chemeon has offered no 13 evidence of any guidance from OSHA to Chemeon advising that its SDS must include 14 "formerly Metalast" in the identification of its products.

15 Before trial, Chemeon cited a document called OSHA Brief, "Hazard 16 Communication Standard: Safety Data Sheets." (See ECF No. 516-1.) The OSHA Brief 17 states that a Safety Data Sheet ("SDS") Section 1: Identification must contain (among 18 other things):

19 Product identifier used on the label and any other common names or 20 synonyms by which the substance is known.

21 Chemeon did not offer the OSHA Brief as evidence at trial. When Chemeon referred to 22 the OSHA Brief before trial, Chemeon did not authenticate or otherwise lay an 23 evidentiary foundation for the document. Chemeon did not request judicial notice of the 24 OSHA Brief and offered no foundation for the court to take judicial notice of the 25 document. Accordingly, the court may not properly regard the OSHA Brief as an 26 authoritative interpretation of the OSHA Regulation, including Appendix D.

27 Even assuming that the OSHA Brief can be regarded as an authoritative 28 interpretation of the OSHA Regulation, Chemeon offered no evidence that "formerly

1 Metalast" is a "common name" or "synonym" for any of its products. Further, Chemeon's 2 own conduct is inconsistent with its argument that each SDS must identify the chemical 3 substance by every name under which the substance is known. For example, AA-200 is 4 sold by at least two distributors under product names that are not disclosed on Ex. 547.
5 The cleaners, deox, etch, seal, and other products are similarly purchased from 6 suppliers and re-labeled by Chemeon, but Chemeon does not identify the other brand 7 names or product names for those chemicals. See Exs. 548-592.

8 Even assuming Chemeon should or must "identify" its products as "formerly 9 Metalast" because, before 2015, the products were called "Metalast," Chemeon could 10 have licensed the use of "Metalast" for that purpose from Semas. Chemeon has cited 11 no statute, regulation, or judicial authority for the proposition that it is free to use any 12 common name or synonym to identify its products in an SDS. Therefore, the court also 13 rejects this defense.

14 B. Defendants' Counterclaim 2 – Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing 15 Under Nevada law, "[e]very contract imposes upon each party a duty of good faith 16 and fair dealing in its performance and enforcement." A.C. Shaw Constr. v. Washoe 17 County, 105 Nev. 913, 914, 784 P.2d 9 (1989) (quoting Restatement (Second) of 18 Contracts § 205). "The implied covenants of good faith and fair dealing impose a burden 19 that require each party to a contract to refrain from doing anything to injure the right of 20 the other to receive the benefits of the agreement." Shaw v. CitiMortgage, Inc., 201 F.

21 Supp. 3d 1222, 1251 (D. Nev. 2016) (quotation omitted). Where one party to a contract 22 "deliberately countervenes the intention and spirit of the contract, that party can incur 23 liability for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing." Hilton Hotels v.
24 Butch Lewis Productions, 107 Nev. 226, 232, 808 P.2d 919, 922-23 (1991) ("Butch 25 Lewis"). The implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing "essentially forbids arbitrary, 26 unfair acts by one party that disadvantage the other." Frantz v. Johnson, 116 Nev. 455, 27 465, n. 4, 999 P.2d 351, 358, n. 4 (2000) citing Consolidated Generator v. Cummins 28 Engine, 114 Nev. 1304, 1311, 971 P.2d 1251, 1256 (1998); Overhead Door Co. v.

1 Overhead Door Corp., 103 Nev. 126, 128, 734 P.2d 1233, 1235 (1987). See also 2 Department of Transportation v. District Court, 133 Nev. 549, 555, 402 P.3d 677, 683 3 (2017).

4 The duty of good faith and fair dealing imposed by Nevada law provides that even 5 when a party complies “literally” with the terms of a contract, if they purposely breach 6 “the intention and spirit of the contract” they can incur liability for a violation of the 7 covenant of good faith and fair dealing. See Hilton Hotels Corp. v. Butch Lewis
8 Productions, Inc., 107 Nev. 226, 232, 808 P.2d 919, 922-23 (1991). Although such a 9 duty is imposed by operation of law, it remains that an inquiry of good faith is a 10 determination of fact. A.C. Shaw Const., Inc. v. Washoe County, 105 Nev. 913, 916, 784 11 P.2d 9, 11 (1989).

12 The court finds that Chemeon and the Meilings breached the terms of the 13 Settlement Agreement by using the term “Metalast” and “formerly Metalast” in 14 commerce, as discussed above. However, the court finds that the Meilings relied on the 15 advice of their counsel when they breached the contract.

16 The Meilings testified as follows: Robert Ryan, who was the intellectual property 17 attorney for Chemeon and the Meilings was available by phone during the Settlement 18 Conference. Despite placing the material terms of the Settlement Agreement on the 19 record, the Meilings testified that, at the time of the Settlement Conference, they 20 believed the provision barring the use of the term “Metalast” only extended to such 21 things as letter head, business signs, and the like. At this point, the Meilings and 22 Chemeon had an opportunity to oppose judicial approval of the Settlement. The 23 Meilings filed a response opposing approval of the Settlement. In that document, the 24 Meilings stated that they “opposed the settlement because there is no common 25 understanding of agreement reached at the mediation.” Moreover, in their response 26 opposing approval of the Settlement, Chemeon and the Meilings argued they should be 27 permitted to use the term “formerly Metalast” as a historical reference, pursuant to the 28 holding in Steppenwolf. In February of 2015, the Meilings obtained new bankruptcy

1 counsel, Timothy Lukas. Before the hearing on Semas's Motion to Approve Settlement, 2 the Meilings filed a formal pleading withdrawing their opposition to the Settlement
3 Agreement, on the advice of counsel. The Meilings and Chemeon never demanded 4 rescission of the Settlement before or after the Bankruptcy Court approved the 5 Settlement. The Meilings and Chemeon never offered to restore the status quo ante.
6 The Meilings testified that the above actions were taken based on advice given to them 7 by their counsel that a different course of action could be taken. They believed, based on 8 this advice, that their course of conduct was permissible.

9 The court finds that the Meilings are credible on these points and the evidence 10 adduced at trial establishes that the Meilings would not have taken this course of action 11 had they not been relying on the advice of counsel.

12 Thus, the question becomes whether the court can look to their reliance on their 13 counsel's advice in determining whether they breached the implied convenient of good 14 faith and fair dealing. There is no Nevada law directly on point. However, in a review of 15 case law from other jurisdictions, the court finds that it can, and should, consider these 16 facts in making its factual determination.

17 Rea v. Wichita Mortgage Corp. is illustrative on the varied application of the 18 reliance on counsel aids the court's analysis. 747 F.2d 567, 576 (10th Cir. 1984). In Rea 19 found that insofar as good faith is defined in objective terms, reliance is not an absolute 20 defense, but may be a consideration when determining a defendant's good faith, 21 willfulness, or their illegal intent. Id.: see In re Taylor, 655 F.3d 274, 284 (3d Cir. 2011) 22 (in bankruptcy proceeding, holding clients' reliance on counsel precluded finding of bad 23 faith). Reliance on counsel is applicable in many areas of law for a factual determination 24 of bad faith. See e.g., United States v. Conforte, 624 F.2d 869, 876 (9th Cir. 1980)
25 (criminal prosecution for tax evasion); J.J. Newberry Co. v. NLRB, 645 F.2d 148, 152 (2d 26 Cir. 1981) (unfair labor practice violation); Sherr v. Winkler, 552 F.2d 1367, 1375 (10th 27 Cir. 1977) (tort suit against bankruptcy trustee for negligence and misconduct).
28

1 This court therefore finds that while Chemeon and the Meilings breached the 2 Settlement Agreement, but they did not do so in bad faith. Rather, their actions were 3 based upon the advice of counsel and the court finds in favor of Chemeon and the 4 Meilings on this claim.

5 C. Defendants' Counterclaim 7 – Specific Performance

6 Finally, Semas seeks specific performance of the Settlement prohibition against 7 the Meilings' use of Metalast "in any fashion or manner whatsoever." "[S]pecific 8 performance of a contract duty will be granted in the discretion of the court against a 9 party who has committed or is threatening to commit a breach of the duty." Restatement 10 (Second) of Contracts, § 357. The Nevada Supreme Court said,

11 Equity regards as done what in good conscience ought to be done. [ ] 12 Specific performance is available when the terms of the contract are 13 definite and certain, [ ] the remedy at law is inadequate, [ ] the plaintiff has 14 tendered performance, [ ] and the court is willing to order it. [ ]

15 Carcione v. Clark, 96 Nev. 808, 811, 618 P.2d 346, 348 (1980) (citations omitted). See 16 also Serpa v. Darling, 107 Nev. 299, 304, 810 P.2d 778, 782 (1991). Thus, a request for 17 specific performance is addressed to the court's sound discretion. Id., citing McCann v.
 18 Paul, 90 Nev. 102, 103-104, 520 P.2d 610, 611 (1974).

19 To grant specific performance, the court need not find that the agreement is 20 certain beyond doubt:

21 As this suit in equity is an affirmative proceeding to procure the 22 performance of obligations, a clear and precise understanding of the terms 23 of the contract is normally required. [ ] The contract must be reasonably 24 certain as to its subject matter, its stipulations, its purposes, its parties and 25 the circumstances under which it was made.

26 Harmon v. Tanner Motor Tours of Nevada, Limited, 79 Nev. 4, 17, 377 P.2d 622, 629
 27 (1963) ("Harmon"). In the Settlement, the parties agreed:

28 [Chemeon] through the Meilings, will continue to use the [disputed Metalast] mark for 90 days following entry of the order approving the settlement agreement by Judge Beesley, if he does approve it. At the end of that 90-day period, [Chemeon], the Meilings, and any other entity in which the Meilings have an interest, will no longer be able to use the name Metalast in any fashion or manner whatsoever. Following that 90 days, the

1 mark will be owned by Mr. and Mrs. Semas, or any entity in which they 2 choose to transfer that mark.

3 Ex. 503, page 6, lines 2-11. Although Chemeon has complained about the 4 consequences of that promise, Chemeon has never argued that the provision is 5 indefinite or unclear. Before the Bankruptcy Court approved the Settlement, the Meilings 6 filed briefs and declarations indicating that the language used is clear and unambiguous, 7 but that they did not appreciate the words used on the day of the Settlement 8 Conference. Exs. 505, 506, 507, 509. Because that language was definite and clear, 9 the Meilings' counsel requested that the settlement judge set aside the deal and reopen 10 the negotiation. Ex. 510. The Meilings specifically requested that the Bankruptcy Court 11 modify the promise to specifically allow the use of "formerly Metalast" to identify 12 Chemeon and Chemeon's products, and then withdrew the request. Ex. 505. When this 13 court requested that the Bankruptcy Court provide its interpretation of the Settlement, 14 Judge Beesley said that the language is an "absolute prohibition" on the Meilings' use of 15 "Metalast." Judge Beesley said, "There's no qualification to that, it's everything." Ex.
16 514 (ECF No. 89, p. 4). This court independently finds that the promise not to "use the 17 name Metalast in any fashion or manner whatsoever" is definite and certain.

18 When the Meilings first opposed approval of the Settlement, they argued that 19 enforcement of the terms would create a hardship to Chemeon's business. Exs. 505, 20 506, 507, 509, 510. Foreseeable hardship is not a defense to specific performance.
21 Stoltz v. Grimm, 100 Nev. 529, 532-33, 689 P.2d 927, 929 (1984).

22 In Dynalectric Co. of Nevada, Inc. v. Clark & Sullivan Constructors, Inc., 127 Nev.
23 480, 255 P.3d 286 (2011) the court adopted this Restatement:

24 § 359 Effect of Adequacy of Damages

25 (1) Specific performance or an injunction will not be ordered if damages 26 would be adequate to protect the expectation interest of the injured party.

27 (2) The adequacy of the damage remedy for failure to render one part of 28 the performance due does not preclude specific performance or injunction as to the contract as a whole.

1 (3) Specific performance or an injunction will not be refused merely 2 because there is a remedy for breach other than damages, but such a 3 remedy may be considered in exercising discretion under the rule stated in § 357.

4 Dynalectric, at 484, n. 7, 255 P.2d at 289, n. 7, citing Restatement (Second) of 5 Contracts, § 359.

6 "To destroy one's property is sometimes regarded as an irreparable injury...."
7 Czipott v. Fleigh, 87 Nev. 496, 499, 489 P.2d 681, 683 (1971) ("Czipott"). Semas had a 8 contract right to exclude the Meilings from using the Metalast brand in commerce.
9 Because the Meilings and Chemeon used the Metalast name in the chemical business, 10 Semas was unable to sell, license, or otherwise monetize the brand. Although it is 11 theoretically possible to prove resulting damages, it would be difficult to prove the 12 quantum of damages suffered. See Harmon, at 17, 377 P.2d at 629 (1963) ("The 13 inability of any court to make an appropriate damage award for breach of contract, had 14 Tanner requested same, is evident.") Even where proof of damage is theoretically 15 possible, courts should grant equitable relief when "the equitable remedy is so far 16 superior that the legal remedy is rendered inadequate." Czipott, at 499, 489 P.2d at 683.

17 Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 360 provides:

18 In determining whether the remedy in damages would be adequate, the 19 following circumstances are significant:

- 20 (a) the difficulty of proving damages with reasonable certainty, 21 (b) the difficulty of procuring a suitable substitute performance by means of 22 money awarded as damages, and 23 (c) the likelihood that an award of damages could not be collected.

24 In this case, it would be difficult or impossible for Semas to prove damages from the 25 Meilings' breach of the Settlement with any certainty. Furthermore, a suitable "substitute 26 performance by means of money awarded as damages" would effectively require that 27 the court impose a licensing scheme upon Chemeon to continue using the Metalast 28 name. In doing so, the court would be modifying the Settlement itself to require payment of past and future licensing fees to replace the promise that enjoins conduct. Therefore,

1 under section 360, the court concludes that damages for past or future breaches of the 2 Settlement is not an adequate legal remedy.

3 "An order of specific performance or an injunction will be so drawn as best to 4 effectuate the purposes for which the contract was made and on such terms as justice 5 requires. It need not be absolute in form and the performance that it requires need not 6 be identical with that due under the contract." Restatement (Second) of Contracts, § 7 358.

8 1. Unclean Hands Defense

9 Chemeon and the Meilings insist that the court should not order specific 10 performance of the Settlement because Semas is guilty of unclean hands. "Specific 11 performance or an injunction may be granted in spite of a breach by the party seeking 12 relief, unless the breach is serious enough to discharge the other party's remaining 13 duties of performance." Restatement (Second) of Contracts, § 369. Chemeon and the 14 Meilings have not claimed that Semas breached the Settlement in any way.

15 The District Court previously said,

16 To determine whether unclean hands bars equitable relief, a court 17 must consider "(1) the egregiousness of the misconduct at issue, and (2) 18 the seriousness of the harm caused by the misconduct." Las Vegas Fetish 19 & Fantasy Halloween Ball, Inc., v. Ahern Rentals, Inc., 124 Nev. 272, 182 20 P.3d 764, 767 (2008). Moreover, the alleged inequitable conduct must be connected with the matter in the litigation "otherwise the doctrine is not available as a defense." Truck Ins. Exch. v. Palmer J. Swanson, Inc., 124
Nev. 629, 189 P.3d 656, 662 (2008).

21 Semas argues that with his specific performance claim he "is trying 22 to enforce the settlement agreement, to obtain what he bargained for in 23 exchange for agreeing to pay certain claims and releasing others" and that 24 "none of the conduct alleged in [Plaintiff's Motion] has anything to do with 25 the formation or enforcement of the settlement agreement." (ECF No. 326 26 at 30.) Chemeon contends that because Semas negotiated for ownership 27 of the wordmark as part of the Settlement, his hands are unclean with 28 respect to that mark. (ECF No. 343 at 22.) The Court disagrees—it is possible that Semas' hands were "clean" at the time he negotiated the Settlement and the ownership of the wordmark and then became "unclean" when he renewed the wordmark's registration many months later. The two are unrelated and the theory of unclean hands as advanced in Plaintiff's

1 Motion is unavailing. The Court therefore denies summary judgment in 2 favor of Chemeon on this counterclaim.

3 Chemeon Surface Tech., LLC v. Metalast Int'l, Inc., 312 F. Supp. 3d 944, 964 (D. Nev.
4 2018). Although this decision disposes of a summary judgment motion, the principles 5 nevertheless apply to the trial evidence. Specifically, Chemeon argues that Semas was 6 guilty of inequitable conduct in the manner that he obtained the Metalast trademarks in 7 the first place, so that the enforcement of the Settlement confirming that Semas owns 8 the Metalast marks would be inequitable. The court rejects this argument.

9 First, Chemeon's position, if accepted, would subvert the very purpose of a 10 settlement: if settling parties resolve a dispute over ownership of property -- in this case 11 intangible property -- they should not be able to ignore their bargain by pointing to pre-12 Settlement conduct that bears upon the very thing that was resolved in the Settlement 13 itself.

14 Further, when Chemeon and the Meilings entered into the Settlement Agreement, 15 they were releasing all claims known and unknown up until that point. At the time of the 16 Settlement in the Bankruptcy Court, they bargained for and released all claims to the 17 rights in the Metalast name and were given time to set their affairs in order regarding the 18 use of Metalast—90 days—whereupon they were to cease its use. This never 19 happened, and therefore Chemeon has never complied with the provisions of the 20 Settlement Agreement. For Chemeon to assert an unclean hands defense in a request 21 to the court to not grant injunctive relief to Semas and MI-INC, is in effect a backdoor 22 request of asking the court for a reformation of the provisions of the Agreement they find 23 onerous.

24 “Courts view settlement agreements as the final disposition on matters and will 25 not adjudicate issues that have already been resolved.” Jardin v. Datallegro, Inc., 2009 26 WL 186194, at *5 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 20, 2009) (citing Petro-Ventures, Inc. v. Takessian, 967 27 F.2d 1337, 1343 (9th Cir. 1992)). Claims that fall into the scope of what was released 28 should be dismissed. See, e.g., Promex, LLC v. Hernandez, 781 F. Supp. 2d 1013,

1 1016-17 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (dismissing infringement claims that were mutually released 2 prior to the lawsuit).

3 Chemeon agreed to the terms in the Settlement. Promex, provides that a 4 plaintiff's claim should be dismissed if they fall within the scope of the previous 5 settlement. Such a bar would apply to Semas if they were to assert such a claim.
6 Accordingly, it would stand to reason that the inverse would be true for Chemeon to be 7 barred from asserting a defense predicated on conduct arising from previously 8 adjudicated claims. Chemeon cannot assert Semas's actions are improper when it was 9 agreed in the Settlement that Chemeon would relinquish all rights in that mark. See 10 Rescap Liquidating Tr. v. First California Mortg. Co., 2019 WL 402318, at *8 (N.D. Cal.
11 Jan. 31, 2019) (striking unclean hands defense, among other affirmative defenses, 12 based on defendant's rejected interpretation of settlement agreements release 13 provision).

14 Moreover, the court also rejects Chemeon's argument that Semas fraudulently 15 obtained ownership of the Metalast word mark and logo marks because it is not 16 supported by the evidence or the facts. Chemeon's assertions are based upon the claim 17 that the License Agreement between MI-INC and MI-LLC did not actually exist in 1996 – 18 but was later created by Semas. However, there is no evidence to support this theory.

19 To the contrary, Semas testified that the License Agreement was entered in 1996 20 between MI-INC and MI-LLC. Semas's testimony is corroborated by other evidence.
21 Specifically, in 1995, Semas filed the first applications for registration of the word mark 22 and logo marks. On those applications, the registered owner was listed as MI-INC. Ex.
23 323. In 1996, USPTO granted these applications and issued the registrations explicitly 24 listing MI-INC as the registered owner of the marks. Ex. 323. Between 1996 and 2011, 25 Semas filed several subsequent applications for registration of these trademarks and 26 each application listed the registered owner as MI-INC. Ex. 323. Moreover, in each of 27 the subsequently issued registrations from the USPTO, MI-INC was again explicitly listed 28 as the registered owner. Ex. 323. In addition, MI-INC's ownership of the mark was 1 further corroborated through regular MI-LLC communications to its members, which 2 further corroborates the existence of the License Agreement long before Semas filed for 3 bankruptcy. Exs. 628-629. The court finds Semas's testimony on this point credible.

4 The court further notes that long before this litigation, Chemeon's principal owner 5 subjectively knew that the marks were registered to MI-INC, not MI-LLC. Ex. 285. In 6 2014, Chemeon filed pleadings in the Bankruptcy Court complaining that Semas had 7 fraudulently obtained ownership of the marks. Exs. 501 and 502. Chemeon then 8 entered the Settlement (Ex. 503) which confirmed that Semas owned the trademarks.
9 Public records maintained by the USPTO, as described above, demonstrated that the 10 marks were always registered in the name of MI-INC (Semas's entity) and not MI-LLC.
11 Thus, for all these reasons, the court rejects Chemeon's unclean hands defense.

12 D. Plaintiff's Claim 2 – Declaratory Judgment of No Infringement
13 (Attorney's Fees as Extraordinary Circumstance)

14 "The court in exceptional cases may award reasonable attorney fees to the 15 prevailing party." Lanham Act § 47(a), 15 U.S.C. § 1117(a) (emphasis added).
16 Chemeon claims Semas's conduct makes this case "exceptional" and justifies an award 17 of attorney fees to Chemeon. This court must exercise discretion and consider the 18 totality of circumstances. Octane Fitness, LLC v. ICON Health & Fitness, Inc., 572 U.S.
19 545, 554 (2014). To support its claim under the "exceptional case" provision, Chemeon 20 has asserted that Semas defrauded investors, the Securities and Exchange 21 Commission, the Internal Revenue Service, and the USPTO. The court will consider 22 only Semas's conduct with respect to trademark issues because the authority for 23 "exceptional case" fees exists in the Lanham Act, which does not reach non-trademark 24 claims.

25 As stated above, the court rejects Chemeon's argument that Semas fraudulently 26 obtained ownership of the Metalast word mark and logo marks. Thus, the court does not 27 find that Chemeon is entitled to "exceptional case" fees to relitigate the claims raised 28 before and compromised in the Settlement. Semas sued Chemeon for trademark

1 infringement in his counterclaim. (ECF No. 50 (September 8, 2015).) Semas stipulated 2 to the dismissal of those claims. (ECF No. 181 (September 21, 2016).) The court
3 accepted that stipulation. (ECF No. 199 (November 1, 2016).) Nothing in the stipulation 4 suggests that Chemeon has reserved the right to seek attorney fees to defend against 5 those trademark claims. Chemeon has offered no evidence or analysis to show that 6 those dismissed trademark claims were frivolous or otherwise "exceptional." Therefore, 7 the court finds that this case is not "exceptional" and attorneys' fees will not be awarded 8 pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1117(a).

9 E. Plaintiff's Claim 5 – Common Law Trademark Infringement

10 Chemeon seeks a permanent injunction to prevent Semas from ever using two 11 unregistered (or common law) product marks "TCP-HF" and "AA-200." To prevail on a 12 claim for injunctive relief pursuant to § 43(a) of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a), 13 Chemeon must demonstrate "(1) that it is the prior owner of the trade name or service 14 mark, and (2) that defendant adopted a trade name and service mark that is the same or 15 confusingly similar to plaintiff's trade name or service mark so that there exists a 16 likelihood of confusion to consumers as to the proper origin of the goods or services, 17 such that a consumer is likely to believe that defendant's goods or services are being 18 sold with the consent or authorization of the plaintiff, or that defendant is affiliated with or 19 connected to the plaintiff." American United Life Insurance Company v. American United 20 Insurance Company, 731 F. Supp. 480, 485 (S.D. Fla. 1990).

21 Chemeon cannot own the "TCP-HF" and "AA-200" sub-marks. Before the 22 Settlement, MI-LLC and Chemeon sold "Metalast TCP-HF" and "Metalast AA-200." No 23 products were labeled or advertised for sale as "TCP-HF" or "AA-200" without the 24 preceding "Metalast."

25 Lanham Act § 43(a) applies to both registered and unregistered trademarks, and 26 specifies civil liability:

27 (1) Any person who, on or in connection with any goods or services, or 28 any container for goods, uses in commerce any word, term, name, symbol, or device, or any combination thereof, or any false designation of 1 origin, false or misleading description of fact, or false or misleading 2 representation of fact, which ...

3 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a) (emphasis added). Assuming Chemeon owns the "TCP-HF" and 4 "AA-200" sub-marks, there was no evidence that Semas ever used these sub-marks in 5 commerce. As evidence of an infringement (or threatened infringement) of the two sub-6 marks, Chemeon points to Semas's emails offering to sell or license the Metalast brand 7 to companies in the chemical business. Exs. 219, 220. Before trial, the court 8 considered the same evidence as part of summary judgment practice, and concluded,

9 None of these things implicated Semas' or his related entities' false use or 10 misrepresentation of items owned by Chemeon in commerce; Semas was 11 not attempting to market or sell a good when making statements during the 12 course of litigation...

13 (Amended Order, ECF No. 411, pp. 11-12 (italics in original).) Likewise, Chemeon 14 offered no trial evidence that Semas ever labeled, advertised, or offered to sell any 15 products as "TCP-HF" or "AA-200." There is no evidence that Semas has used those 16 sub-marks in commerce.

17 Assuming that "TCP-HF" and "AA-200" are protected marks at all, Chemeon did 18 not establish the elements required for a permanent injunction:

19 According to well-established principles of equity, a plaintiff seeking a 20 permanent injunction must satisfy a four-factor test before a court may 21 grant such relief. A plaintiff must demonstrate: (1) that it has suffered an 22 irreparable injury; (2) that remedies available at law, such as monetary 23 damages, are inadequate to compensate for that injury; (3) that, 24 considering the balance of hardships between the plaintiff and defendant, a 25 remedy in equity is warranted; and (4) that the public interest would not be 26 disserved by a permanent injunction.

27 eBay, Inc. v. MercExchange, LLC, 547 U.S. 388, 391, 126 S.Ct. 1837, 1839, 164 28 L.Ed.2d 641 (2006). To obtain a permanent injunction in a trademark action, the plaintiff must prove actual irreparable harm will occur. Herb Reed Enterprises, LLC v. Florida Entertainment Management, Inc., 736 F.3d 1239, 1249 (9th Cir. 2013). If the defendant has infringed on a trademark but has ceased the offending activity and there is no indication of inclination to repeat the offense, the trademark plaintiff is not entitled to a

1 permanent injunction. Larry Pitt & Associates v. Lundy Law, LLP, 294 F. Supp. 3d 329, 2 343 (E.D.Pa. 2018). Here, there is no evidence that Semas ever infringed on the "TCP-3 HF" or "AA-200" claimed marks in the past. Further, there is no evidence that he has 4 threatened to do so in the future. The court finds for Semas on this claim.

5 F. Plaintiff's Claim 6 – Copyright Infringement

6 Chemeon claims that Semas infringed on Chemeon's copyright in two works, the 7 2003 ICP Job Pro Web Page Advertisement ("2003 Work") and the 2004 Product Label 8 ("2004 Work").

9 A plaintiff cannot file an action for copyright infringement until the Copyright Office 10 has issued a Certificate of Registration for the work. 17 U.S.C. § 411(a); Fourth Estate
11 Public Benefit Corporation v. Wall-Street.com, LLC, -- U.S. --, 139 S.Ct. 881, 885, 203 12 L.Ed.2d 147 (March 4, 2019). Chemeon initially added claims for infringement of the 13 Copyright Works in its Second Amended Complaint (ECF No. 348, November 1, 2017), 14 before the Copyright Office issued Certificates of Registration for the 2003 Work and 15 2004 Work. Under Fourth Estate, the Second Amended Complaint was premature as to 16 the claims for infringement of the Copyright Works.

17 Chemeon filed a Third Amended Complaint (ECF No. 535, October 31, 2019) to 18 restate its claims for infringement of the Copyright Works. Chemeon has not 19 demonstrated that the Copyright Office issued Certificates of Registration prior to that 20 filing, but Semas has not disputed that that the Third Amended Complaint was 21 premature under Fourth Estate. However, under the three-year statute of limitations in 22 17 U.S.C. § 507(b), the Third Amended Complaint can only reach back three years prior 23 to the date of the complaint to address, in this case, infringements occurring after 24 November 1, 2016. Roley v. New World Pictures, Ltd. 19 F.3d 479, 481 (9th Cir. 1994).
25 Chemeon offered no evidence that Semas infringed on the 2003 Work or 2004 Work 26 within this three-year "look back" period.

27 Chemeon alleges that Semas infringed on the Copyright Works by including them 28 as exemplars in support of a June 21, 2015 application to renew the Metalast word mark.

1 Ex. 245. To look back to that alleged infringement, Chemeon claims that its Third 2 Amended Complaint relates back to its Second Amended Complaint, which was filed 3 within three years after the alleged infringement. However, because the Second 4 Amended Complaint was premature under Fourth Estate, allowing relation-back to the 5 Second Amended Complaint would subvert the principle of Fourth Estate. The court 6 adopts the following reasoning:

7 First, with respect to relation-back, Plaintiff's argument would make a 8 meaningless formality out of Fourth Estate's requirement that an 9 application be approved prior to filing suit. Were it correct, a plaintiff could 10 file suit at any time, notwithstanding Section 411(a)'s precondition, and 11 simply update the complaint when registration finally occurred. That would 12 undermine Congress's choice to "maintain[ ] registration as prerequisite to 13 suit." Fourth Estate, 139 S. Ct. at 891. Enforcing Congress's choice means 14 that an amended complaint alleging compliance with Section 411(a) cannot 15 relate back to a time before that compliance was achieved.

13 Malibu Media, LLC v. Doe, 2019 WL 1454317, *2-*3 (S.D.N.Y. April 2, 2019) (internal 14 citations and footnotes omitted).

15 The only way to harmonize 17 U.S.C. § 411(a) and 17 U.S.C. § 507(b) is to 16 require that the copyright owner file the complaint after the issuance of the Certificate of 17 Registration (section 411(a)) but before the expiration of the three-year statute of 18 limitations (section 507(b)). Chemeon did not bring its action for infringement of the 19 Copyright Works within this window. Based on this conclusion, Chemeon's claims for 20 copyright infringement are time-barred.

21 The following additional conclusions are independent reasons for a defense 22 judgment on these infringement claims.

23 1. Authorship

24 On April 20, 2017, Chemeon applied to the Copyright Office for registration of the 25 2003 Work (Ex. 293) and the 2004 Work (Ex. 291). In each case, Madylon "certified" 26 that MI-LLC was the author or owner of the work, and that Chemeon acquired MI-LLC's 27 ownership rights. The Copyright Office issued Certificates of Registration for the 2003 28 Work (Ex. 292) and 2004 Work (Ex. 290). Those Certificates of Registration are

1 effective as of the application date, March 20, 2017. 17 U.S.C. § 410(d). However, 2 because Chemeon did not seek registration within five years after the works were 3 created, those Certificates of Registration carry no presumption about the validity of the 4 copyrights, authorship, or ownership. 17 U.S.C. § 410(c). Chemeon offered no direct 5 evidence to identify the author(s) of the 2003 Work or 2004 Work. There is some 6 evidence that QualiChem may have created an original work of authorship in the product 7 label shown in Exhibit 304. Chemeon failed to satisfy its burden of proof to establish 8 authorship and ownership of the Copyright Works.

9 2. Monetary Remedies

10 Chemeon offered no evidence of actual damages caused by the alleged 11 infringements. Chemeon offered no evidence of infringer's profits resulting from the 12 alleged infringements. Chemeon cannot recover statutory damages or attorney fees 13 because the alleged infringement took place before registration. 17 U.S.C. § 412.
14 Chemeon offered no evidence of any post-registration infringements.

15 3. Injunction

16 A court may grant "final injunctions on such terms as it may deem reasonable to 17 prevent or restrain infringement of a copyright." 17 U.S.C. § 502(a). To obtain a 18 permanent injunction for infringement of a copyright, the infringement plaintiff must prove 19 "actual" success on the merits. See Perfect 10, Inc. v. Google, Inc., 653 F.3d 976, 981 20 (9th Cir. 2011). Chemeon has not won "actual" success on the merits. Furthermore, 21 Chemeon has offered no evidence that Semas has threatened to copy the Copyright 22 Works in the future.

23 4. Further Infringement by USPTO Publication

24 Chemeon argues that Semas must be compelled to withdraw his June 21, 2015 25 renewal application so that the Copyright Works are no longer available for public 26 downloads. Chemeon offered no evidence or citation to statutes, regulations, or judicial 27 precedents for the principle that Semas is responsible for any copies made by the 28 USPTO or the public because the Copyright Works are available for public download.

1 Further, Chemeon has not addressed why the USPTO's use or reproduction of the 2 Copyright Works is not permitted under 17 U.S.C. § 108 (limitation on exclusive rights: 3 reproduction by libraries and archives). For all the above reasons, the court finds for 4 Semas on this claim.

5 VI. CONCLUSION

6 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that judgment is granted in favor of Defendants on 7 Plaintiff's claims for relief;

8 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that judgment is granted in favor of Defendants on 9 Defendants' first and seventh claims for relief;

10 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that judgment is granted in favor of Plaintiffs on 11 Defendants' second claim for relief;

12 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED AND ADJUDGED as follows:

- 13 • Plaintiff's request for a permanent injunction enjoining Semas and his 14 business entities from using "TCP-HF" or "AA-200" is DENIED;
- 15 • Plaintiff's request for a permanent injunction enjoining Semas and his 16 business entities from infringing on the Copyright Works is DENIED;
- 17 • Plaintiff's request for a finding that this is an "exceptional case" under 18 Lanham Act § 47(a) is DENIED;

19 IT IS FURTHER DECREED that, beginning June 11, 2015, Dean Meiling, 20 Madylon Meiling, and Chemeon had no right to use "Metalast" in commerce, including, 21 but not limited to, calling itself or its products "formerly Metalast" or "formerly known as 22 Metalast";

23 IT IS FURTHER DECREED that Counterclaimants Dean Meiling, Madylon 24 Meiling, and Chemeon are hereby ordered to perform the Settlement by halting all use of 25 "Metalast" on any product labels, advertisements, sales orders, invoices, purchase 26 orders, technical data sheets, safety data sheets, web pages, brochures, or other 27 documents of commerce. This judgment of specific performance may be enforced by
